Research Interests

Multi-Dimensional Classification: Learning across heterogeneous class spaces through semi-supervised label propagation, dimension-specific representations and heterogeneous similarity modeling, cross-dimension collaboration, and latent-factor-based decoupling of class dependencies; extending these methods to worst-case fairness across both classes and dimensions.

Text Data Condensation: Constructing compact, representative and diverse text datasets using semantic-anchor optimization, text inversion and lightweight LLM refinement, while preserving semantic and reasoning coherence without relying on downstream models (collaborative research).

LLM-Based Privacy Inference: Studying zero-shot inference of hidden attributes in tabular data, combining pretrained semantic knowledge with evidence-based pseudo-context and table-level statistical learning to assess privacy risks without ground-truth target labels.
